

The Federal Communications Commission

Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

My wife and I do not want to pay more for our wireless telephone service. We urge you to reject a flat fee proposal that would change how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund. High taxes forced us to terminate our wireline long distance service last year. High taxes may force us to reduce or terminate our wireline local phone service this year. We am concerned that this proposal could make our current wireless service unaffordable as well..

Under the flat fee proposal you are considering, people who make few long distance calls would pay the same as people or businesses that make many calls. In other words, low-volume and primarily residential customers would bear the same universal service fund burden as a high-volume residential or business customers. This is unfair.

We use our wireless phone primarily for safety and security. We urge you to reject the proposal to change the USF collection system to a flat-fee, and to reject any other proposals that would increase government-mandated taxes and fees on any personal communication services.

Sincerely,

George Moore
